

Sri Lanka Gemstone Jewelry — U.S. Retail Field Guide

A practical buying tool: match a piece in a Sri Lankan shop to comparable U.S. retail, estimate what it could sell for, and work backward to what you should pay.

141 real retail comparables

10 gem categories

Outright + consignment math

Researched 2026-08-11

Prices are ASKING prices observed via web search on 2026-08-11 — reference points, not confirmed sale values. Verify each at its listing URL before you rely on it.

---------	---------	---------	---------	---------	-------	---------	---------

All figures derived from the assumptions below. "Net" columns = dollars paid to the Sri Lankan jeweler.

Assumptions & Formulas

How to use: estimate the U.S. retail (R) from the comparable bands, then read your buy targets. Outright: pay ≤ 40% of R (never above 50%). Consignment: the jeweler's net should sit 50–60% of R; above 60% there is too little margin left after fees.

Assumption	Default value
Ideal outright cost	40% of retail
Max outright cost	50% of retail
Preferred consignment net (to jeweler)	50% of retail
Max consignment net (warning level)	60% of retail
Payment processing	3% of retail
Returns / damage reserve	5% of retail
Insured international shipping (SL → US)	max($60, 2% of retail) per piece
U.S. import duty allowance (finished jewelry)	5.5% of value (loose stones often 0%)
Packaging / presentation	$8 per piece
Domestic shipping to U.S. buyer	$12 per sale

Change these in `build/econ.py` to re-tune the whole guide. Small pieces (<~$300 retail) show thin or negative margins because the ~$60 insured-shipping floor is charged once per piece — commodity items only work when you import several at once and amortise one shipment across them. The per-piece math here is the conservative single-unit case.

Ceylon / Sri Lankan Moonstone MS

Classic adularia moonstone with billowy blue adularescence (the 'flash'). Sri Lanka is the benchmark origin for blue-sheen moonstone. Value is driven far more by the strength, colour and centering of the flash and by the stone's transparency than by size alone. A clean, glassy stone with a strong 3-D blue sheen beats a bigger, milky, weak-flash stone.

A • Small / Basic MS-A

3-5 mm, simple sterling setting, ordinary flash. Studs & small pendants.

Ceylon / Sri Lankan Blue Sapphire SA

The flagship Sri Lankan gem. Price per carat explodes with size, colour saturation (vivid medium-deep 'cornflower' to royal blue), clarity, and — critically — HEAT TREATMENT and a credible lab report. Unheated, well-saturated Ceylon sapphire with a GIA/GRS/SSEF/Gubelin report is a different market from heated commercial goods. Always separate heated vs unheated and confirm the report.

A • Small / Basic SA-A

Padparadscha Sapphire PAD

The pink-orange 'lotus' sapphire; Sri Lanka is the classic origin. A high-value niche - a true, lab-confirmed padparadscha colour commands large premiums, and the 'padparadscha' call on the report (AGL/GRS/GIA/SSEF) is itself part of the value. Heated vs unheated matters enormously.

Alexandrite (Colour-Change) ALX

Colour-change chrysoberyl - green/teal in daylight to red/purple under incandescent light. Among the highest price-per-carat coloured stones. Natural alexandrite with strong change and a lab report is rare and expensive; LAB-CREATED alexandrite is cheap and everywhere. Confirm natural vs synthetic on a report before paying natural prices.

Color Change Lab-Created Alexandrite Rhodium-Over-Sterling-Silver Ring 2.99ctw (ROH181)

JTV COMMODITY

price not shown · verify at listing

Jewelry type	ring
Gemstone	LAB-CREATED (synthetic) alexandrite - NOT natural
Claimed origin	lab-grown (no geographic origin)
Carat	2.99 ctw lab-created alexandrite
Shape / cut	not disclosed; green-to-red color change
Treatment	synthetic / lab-created
Metal	rhodium over sterling silver
Setting	cluster/accented ring
Construction	mass-produced
Certification	not applicable (synthetic)

CONTRAST ITEM - clearly synthetic. Nearly 3ctw of 'alexandrite' in silver for a tiny fraction of natural pricing; lab-created alexandrite runs roughly $200-$800/ct as a material vs $10k-$35k+/ct for natural. Illustrates why a lab report is critical when buying in Sri Lanka.

Jewelry type	ring
Gemstone	LAB-CREATED (synthetic) alexandrite - NOT natural
Claimed origin	lab-grown (no geographic origin)
Carat	varies (oval/cushion, ~1-2 ct typical)
Shape / cut	oval / cushion; purple-blue color change
Treatment	synthetic / lab-created
Metal	925 sterling silver, 14k gold vermeil, or 14k gold
Setting	solitaire / halo / vintage-style
Construction	handmade to mass-produced (varies by shop)
Certification	not applicable (synthetic); some shops disclose 'lab created'

CONTRAST ITEM - clearly labeled lab-created. Etsy is saturated with cheap synthetic 'alexandrite' rings marketed alongside natural, often as bestsellers. Included to show the buyer the visual look-alike that costs 1-2 orders of magnitude less than certified natural Sri Lankan material.

0.36ct Natural Color-Change Alexandrite & Diamond Ring, Yellow Gold and Platinum

1stDibs FINE JEWELRY

$2,080

Jewelry type	ring
Gemstone	natural alexandrite (color-change chrysoberyl)
Carat	0.36 ct alexandrite (plus diamond accents)
Treatment	no enhancement implied (natural color-change); not explicitly stated in snippet
Metal	yellow gold and platinum
Setting	accented fashion ring with diamonds
Certification	not disclosed in snippet

Entry-point genuine natural alexandrite ring; sub-half-carat stone keeps a real natural piece near ~$2,000. Whole-ring implied ~$5,800/ct but includes diamonds/metal, so stone-only per-carat is lower. Good low anchor for 'cheapest credible natural.'

Metal	18k white gold
Setting	solitaire-style natural alexandrite ring
Certification	GIA certificate provided free per dealer ($120 value); verify report number

Dedicated natural-alexandrite specialist that issues a GIA report per stone. Useful 'middle' comparable: ~0.5ct natural in solid 18k gold at under $3k. Dealer notes clean natural alexandrite is extremely rare (almost always included), so eye-clean stones command large premiums.

Carat	1.68 ct alexandrite (plus diamonds)
Treatment	natural color-change; GIA report
Metal	platinum
Setting	cocktail ring, diamond accents
Certification	GIA report

Directly on-category: GIA CEYLON (Sri Lanka) origin, over 1.5ct, in platinum, for only $3,297. Whole-ring implies ~$1,960/ct, notably low for a 1.68ct natural, consistent with Sri Lankan/Ceylon material typically showing WEAKER color change than Russian/Brazilian, which depresses per-carat value. Excellent Sri Lanka price benchmark.

Scaling caveat: these shapes are drawn in real millimetres and print at true size on paper at 100% (no "fit to page" scaling). On a phone screen the size depends on your device, so always trust the printed numbers. Round sizes are diameters; ovals are length×width.

Round (diameter)

Oval / pear (length × width)

Rule of thumb for round stones: 5 mm≈0.5 ct, 6.5 mm≈1 ct, 8 mm≈2 ct (varies by stone density — sapphire & zircon are denser and weigh more than the same-size moonstone).

Shopping Checklist — Ask Every Seller

- ☐ Gem species (e.g. corundum, chrysoberyl, feldspar, garnet, spinel, zircon)
- ☐ Variety (e.g. blue sapphire, padparadscha, cat's eye, moonstone)
- ☐ Sri Lankan / Ceylon origin? — claimed vs documented
- ☐ Natural or synthetic / lab-created?
- ☐ Carat weight (get the actual number)
- ☐ Dimensions in mm (length × width × depth)
- ☐ Colour (hue, tone, saturation — in daylight AND indoor light)
- ☐ Clarity (eye-clean? inclusions? windows?)
- ☐ Cut / shape and quality of cutting (symmetry, polish, windowing)
- ☐ Treatment (none / heat / diffusion / glass-fill / irradiation / dye)
- ☐ Heated or unheated? (sapphire, padparadscha, zircon especially)
- ☐ Lab certificate? Which lab? (GIA, GRS, SSEF, Gübelin, AGL, GIT, Lotus)
- ☐ Metal type (silver, gold, platinum)
- ☐ Metal purity (925, 9k/10k/14k/18k/22k, Pt950)
- ☐ Metal weight in grams
- ☐ Handmade / cast / CAD-made?
- ☐ Maker / workshop name
- ☐ Workshop location (city / area)
- ☐ Normal Sri Lankan RETAIL (tourist) price
- ☐ Outright TRADE price (what they'll actually sell to you for)

- ☐ Consignment / net price (if they'll hold it until you sell)
- ☐ Export capability & paperwork (NGJA export licence / dealer can ship)
- ☐ Shipping cost (insured courier to the U.S.)
- ☐ Insurance included / available?
- ☐ Can they PRODUCE / REPLACE this piece (repeatable) or is it unique?
- ☐ Is the piece one-of-a-kind or reproducible to order?

Red Flags — Do Not Buy Yet

- 🚩 Origin claimed but NO documentation on an expensive stone.
- 🚩 "Unheated sapphire" with no lab report at a high price.
- 🚩 Seller won't give you the carat weight or the mm dimensions.
- 🚩 Metal purity is vague ("gold colour", "German silver", no hallmark).
- 🚩 Tourist retail price presented as "wholesale" or "special price for you".
- 🚩 Price justified mainly by a story (mine visit, family, luck) rather than the stone.
- 🚩 A big premium with no visible stone quality (weak flash / weak star / dull colour) to justify it.
- 🚩 "Certificate" from an unknown local lab, or a photocopy that doesn't match the stone.
- 🚩 Cat's-eye / colour-change / star that only shows under the seller's single spotlight.
- 🚩 Reluctance to let you examine the stone loose, in daylight, or with a loupe.
- 🚩 "Alexandrite" or "zircon" that is suspiciously cheap and abundant (likely synthetic / CZ).
- 🚩 No export paperwork or courier — you can't legally/practically get it home.
- 🚩 Glue lines, doublets, foil backs, or a closed/backed setting hiding the pavilion.

Sources & Method

All prices in this guide are ASKING prices observed via web search on 2026-08-11 from U.S.-facing retail and marketplace listings. They are reference points, NOT confirmed sale prices. Marketplace (Etsy/1stDibs) asking prices can sit above realised sale prices; where sales/review counts were visible they are noted. Because this build environment blocks direct page fetching, individual listing specs that were not visible in search results are marked "not disclosed" rather than guessed, and every listing should be re-verified at its URL before you rely on it. Practical retail ranges are derived from the observed listings (trimmed of single high/low outliers), never set first and back-filled.

Full clickable source list with every URL and the research date is in `Sources.csv` and the `Sources` tab of `Retail_Comparables.xlsx`.
